

Official Statement:

A lot of people have been wondering about where the results were acquired from, and that is but an easy question to answer for someone in the exam control direction 'DEC' had sold me these yesterday for a price of $1 000 USD equivalent to about 36 930 new Ougiyas 'MRU'. While I will not share their personal information under any circumstances, they were quite accepting for my offer and so I got the results in the form of two databases 'candidat' and 'resu1si' with a not bad explanatioin of the column names and all that.

The transaction had successfully completed around 00:00 16th of October 2020 local time, then I quickly got on to work getting the results onto my website and implementing them in the code.

And then sending emails and messages to people that signed up to my mailing list notifying them of the results, within the first few hours it exploded with visitors.

Alas, what we all should learn from this is: 'Once a corrupt government, always a corrupt government'.
